We will make commercially reasonable efforts to notify You before taking such actions so that You can remedy the issue. However, We reserve the right to act immediately if We reasonably believe that allowing such Content or use of the Services would expose Us to civil, regulatory or criminal liability. If We breach this warranty, We will (at Our option) repair or replace the Services within a reasonable time period or refund the fees for the period in which the Services did not materially conform to its specifications. This is Your only remedy for breach of the warranty above and cannot be used with other relief mechanisms (e.g., You cannot claim a breach of warranty and collect eligible SLA credits for the same event). In order to receive this remedy You must promptly notify Us of a breach of this warranty. The Service Description may provide for additional or substitute warranties or performance standards if expressly provided for in the Service Description.

These exclusions apply even if either party has been advised of the possibility of such damages. However, the above exclusions will not apply to Your liability for a material breach by You of Cisco’s intellectual or proprietary rights.

To the extent allowed by law, the maximum liability of Cisco (which includes, collectively, its Affiliates, officers, directors, employees, agents, suppliers and licensors) and any Approved Source to You shall not exceed the fees paid by You to Cisco or any Approved Source during the 12 months before the last event that gave rise to Your claim. This limitation of liability applies whether the claims are contract, tort (including negligence), or otherwise. This limitation of liability for Services is in the aggregate and not per incident. Except for Your breach of Cisco’s intellectual or proprietary rights, neither party may bring a claim under this Agreement more than 18 months after the event that creates the action or claim.
